

THE COMICS

Make a small cartoon page. You can use the whole page or divide it into frames.

Kidsword

Luke 9:28-36

THE JERUSALEM STAR

You are the editor of this newspaper! Read the article and find ten misspelled words and six punctuation errors.

MAN GLOWS, PROPHETS APPEAR!

Last night on a local hilltop a populer Rabbi, Jesus the son of Joseph, began to glow, according to a numbur of witnesses? "His cloths became whiter than any bleach could make them!" said Peter, one of his Followers. "I was on a nearby hill when I saw this campfire," added anothur onlooker, "but when I saw the campfire get up and walk down the hill I figured that either I was crazy or something very strang was hapening."

Others claimed, to have seen the prophet Elijah (who died about eight hundred years ago) and Moses (died about thirteen hundred years ago) talkking with Jesus, while he glowed on top of the hill. "And then we all herd a voice that said 'This is my beloved son, lissen to him!'" added Peter.

"Obviously a cheap trick designed to impress the ignorant masses!" said a member of the Sanhedren (the ruling council) who asked not to be named: When asked what Moses and Elijah had to say? Jesus looked directly into the eyes of this reportor and said, "They brought me comfort from God concerning my fate." And what is this fate? "In not many days, you will see for yourself," he added.

Jesus (you draw him glowing)

NATE LEVY

NEW MESSIAH A GLOWING EXAMPLE

Don't look now, but here comes another "messiah." Terrific, Levy, another column about another messiah--give us a break!" I know that's what you're thinking, but it seems this new candidate has some tricks up his sleeve that have won him a place in the hearts of the masses. You should know about this one: Jesus of Nazareth.

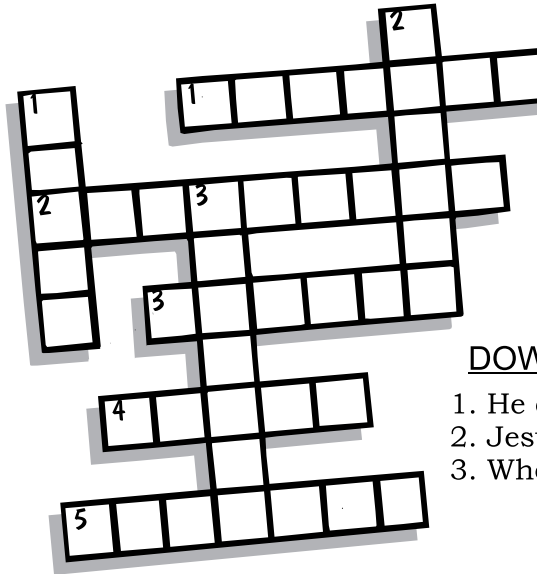

Glowing on a hilltop last night was only the latest of his shenanigans. His followers claim to have seen him walk on water, heal the crippled, feed a crowd (I mean a crowd--more than five thousand people) with a few fish and five loaves of bread. And there's something else:

Jesus hasn't said a word about I overthrowing the Romans. He says he's more interested in overthrowing the it power of evil that rules over Israel with a sword sharper and bloodier than Rome's!" Thanks, Jesus, but I think we had something else in mind. Next!

With Passover nearly upon us, rumor has it that Jesus will spend a good deal of time teaching on the Temple grounds. At the very least, he has entertainment value. If you'll be in Jerusalem, you might not want to "passover" this "messiah."

Nate Levy (read, then draw him)

COVER STORY CROSSWORD

DOWN

1. He died about 1,300 years ago
2. Jesus' father
3. Where Jesus glowed

ACROSS

1. What Moses and Elijah brought Jesus
2. The ruling council
3. He died about 800 years ago
4. He said, "His clothes became whiter than any bleach could make them."
5. Elijah was a _____.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Write one!

FEEDBACK

ANSWER, IF YOU CAN ...

1. Is Nate Levy trying to be clever or funny? Underline the "funny" parts.
2. Do you think Nate believes that Jesus is the Messiah? If Nate met the real Messiah, do you think it would be easy for him to believe? Do you think it was easy for anyone to believe?
3. What do you think Nate means when he writes, "Thanks, Jesus, but I think we had something else in mind. Next!"?
4. Circle every noun (person, place or thing) in Nate's article.